COULDN'T BE OWN BROTHER

The Famous Case of "Ellis Glenn" Still Drags in the Courts.

For almost a year the strange case of Ellis Glenn—the case of a former convict as a man and then discovered to be a woman—has been hanging heavily on the hands of the authorities at Parkersburg, West Virginia. The conviction was obtained at Hillsboro, Ill., but when the sex of the prisoner was revealed she was promptly delivered to West Virginia on requisition papers.

The trial at Parkersburg also on a forgery charge, has been delayed by continuances, and Miss Glenn's fate is still unsettled by a Parkersburg jury.

In the course of her long waiting for her trial Miss Glenn has greatly changed. She is to-day a thorough woman in appearance, and it is doubtful if she could again successfully masquerade as a man.

Her own story, it will be remembered, was that her twin brother, Ellis Glenn, was the original prisoner, and that she disguised herself and slipped into his place while he was being taken to the penitentiary. It has been confidently declared that in case of Miss Glenn's conviction here the brother would appear to take all the blame and do his act of sacrifice.

On the other hand, the woman is claimed to be a person of considerable record in the south—a certain Cora Alice Cunningham, twice married, and once reported dead in Florida. She is said to have masqueraded as Ellis Glenn from about five years ago until her arrest, to have done a man's work as clerk and hostler in a Williamstown, W. Va., store and to have been a bail fellow with frequenters of the local saloon, drinking freely, but not to excess.

Ellis Glenn paid much attention to the girls and was engaged to marry Miss Ella Duke of Butler, Ill. The woman prisoner here says she also took up and carried on this betrothal. Miss Duke now regards as very significant the fact upon which she used to joke her supposed lover—that Ellis Glenn was accomplished at needlework and crocheting.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out. Fill a bottle of common glass with water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidney, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

May Smith Robbins. Manager Ferguson will present to the patrons of the Ferguson Opera House Dec. 8, the little comedienne, May Smith Robbins, and a strong supporting company in the musical melo-drama "Little Trizie." Miss Robbins is a dainty, magnetic little personage who invests a part strongly reminiscent of Lotta, with new life and vigour. Her songs and dances are features of the play and are neatly and artistically done. Her versatility is exemplified by her assumption of five different characters: "Trizie," the Romp Heiress; "Katrina," a German Match Girl; "Ned Sommers," a Law Clerk; "Mollie Dooley," the Irish Flower Girl; and "Mollie Nitouche," a French Opera Singer. Her German specialty is a masterpiece of the singing and dancing art. Miss Robbins is a bright piquant little actress who captures her audience with her ingenious action and original naivete of manner. She is supported by a strong company, including Fred Robbins, Max Neuman, Oliver Labadie, Hugo Cannou, Gerne Mora, and others.

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. Joe McIlwary that has been seriously ill the past six weeks, is reported no better at this writing.

"Little Trizie" which will appear at the Opera House, Saturday, Dec. 8, is one of that class of plays that have become so popular of late years under the name of musical or operatic comedies. In other countries they are called musical melo-dramas. Unlike the general farce comedy, it is free from the usual vulgar songs and horse plays that are introduced in these incongruities. "Little Trizie" is a play a man can take his entire family to see, and they will all enjoy it, even to the "little ones." May Smith Robbins, the star of the attraction, is a magnetic little lady who has a faculty of making friends and admirers in every little city she appears. She is a sweet singer, a wonderful dancer and her power of mimicry is unsurpassed. She has been taken successively for a German, French and Irish girl, in the character she assumes, and being of pure Celtic origin, she certainly displays great versatile powers. She is supported by a company of talented artists who produce come clever and high class specialties.

At Lancaster, society is all agog over the affair of an 18-year-old girl who is about to marry a man of 80 who owns considerable property in both Kansas and Kentucky. It is charged that the girl admits that she does not love the man and is marrying him for a home. Well, about the only difference we can see is that the girl is frank.

Brave Men Fall.

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles, as well as women, and all feel the results in loss appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, run-down feeling.
